Foreword

This is just another PaC-SaC, the fifteenth to be published since nineteen hundred and eleven. The first PaC-SaC mirrored the life and activity of the campus of its day and so must this. But fifteen years of feverish activity have been known to bring to some a touch of gray. The Presbyterian College of today is showing the inevitable signs of age and we in our research have found that a great deal of the freshness of youth, the exuberance of the young ideals, is a thing of the past. Wherefore we in this volume may lack the vigor and the simplicity of the youthful. If our pages are lifeless and dull, excuse an aging body, but if through our soul, some measure of the glory and the freshness that was the dream return to you, then this volume of the PaC-SaC will not have been a fruitless labor.

THE EDITORIAL BOARD

DR. B. L. PARKINSON, B. S., M. A., PH. D.

Dedication

Because he so perfectly fits the name of gentleman, flavoring the scholarship and dignity of a Milton with the humorous outlook of a Chaucer, because in the mass of detail he never loses the horizon, it is to Burney Lynch Parkinson, the man, in the forenoon of his stay at Presbyterian College, that we confidently dedicate this the 1923 PaC-SaC.

Alma Mater

Mid Piedmont hills of old S. C.,

There stands a college called P. C.,
She's dear to me this old P. C.,
Where every day is happy.

P. C., P. C., how dear thou art to me,

P. C., P. C., we'll e'er be true to thee,
P. C., P. C., we'll ever sing thy praise,
We'll sing thy praise through all our days,
Hail to thee,

Honor to thy leaned walls,

Honor to thy learned walls,
We'll sing thy praise through all our days,
Our well loved Alma Mater,

P. C., P. C., how dear thou art to me,

P. C., P. C., we'll e'er be true to thee,
P. C., P. C., we'll ever sing thy praise,
We'll sing thy praise through all our days,
Hail to thee,

The College

"Where I may sit and rightly smell
On every star that burneth dark shea,
And every herb that sips the dew,
Till old experience do attain
To something like prophetic strain."

*"What is that which I should turn to, lighting upon days like these?
Every door is barred with gold,
and opens but to golden keys."*

*"Though much is given, much abodes; and though
We are not man that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven, that which we are,
We are."*

*"Huntsman, rest! thy chase is done;
Think not of the rising sun,
For at dawning to avert we Here no bugles sound reveille."*

When thirsty gret in nine we steep,
When healths and deaths go free,
Fishes that tingle in the deep
Know no such liberty.

"A star, a soul, a song, Rest softly on thee in the ninty night."

"Wants a night from under ivied eaves, ere I went to rest.
Did I look on great Ohio
sloping slowly to the West."

*"See! the smoking bowl before us,
Mark our joyful, ragged ring;
Round and round take up the chorus,
And in raptures let us sing."*

Senior Class Poem

*Four years we've dwelt within your walls;
Oh, Spirit of P. C.
Each year has marked us with its task,
Each hour a memory.
Now years past, we must depart,
Too long we've lingered here;
With a faltering step, a leaden heart,
We leave our friendships dear.*

*We would to God we could recall
The days well spent as boys,
To be once more meek Freshmen all,
And outward look on worldly noise,
But nay 'tis past, our time has come,
The day is done for learning;
We must go out and be with those Whose eyes are inward turning.*

*The cherished arts of by-gone years
Cause Proudest heads to droop with sorrow,
Reality seizes foolish tears,
Boys today, but men tomorrow
So what you do, act your part,
Play it well with bovish glee,
That hidden in the oldest heart
Reverently the Spirit of P. C.*

POET '23.

Senior Class History

History is a wonderful study. If it were not for history, where would the world be today? There would be no past experiences recorded by which we could profit today, and all the great men that have lived in the past would pass into oblivion upon their death, with their great deeds unrecorded. Fortunately there are histories, therefore let us thank those great students who have given them to us.

In going over some of the great histories of the day, I notice that the great history students had failed to give an account of the "great men and their actions" of the Class of 1923; and in this small space I will attempt to give a brief summary of its activities.

Of course, everyone says that his class is the best that has ever entered the institution. That's natural, but if anyone should attempt to find which class has been the most out-standing at Presbyterian College, he would have no trouble whatsoever, for everyone would say, "The Class of 1923."

The Class entered P. C. on the 10th of September, 1924, with one hundred and ten men on the roll. It was the largest class that had ever entered the college. How many of us will ever forget that memorable date, or still worse, that first week? We soon learned that "Sophomore Pine" was the most "Poplar" of all woods on the campus, and it looked as if we would be forced to "bow to it" also. It was in this first year that everyone in college began to realize that the Class of '23 would stand high in the annals of Presbyterian College. To start things off properly, we displayed a wonderful constellation of football stars who gave all they had to bring a half-hold of the Freshman Championship "rag" to P. C., and incidentally, to set a new record for high football scoring in South Carolina by defeating the Wofford frosh by the large score of 101 to 7. In basketball, baseball, and track we again held up the standard, especially by winning the Freshman State Track Championship. This same year brought forth the Demosthenes, the Archimedes, and the Carusoes as well as the Red Granges. The class had among its members some excellent debaters, orators, scientists, journalists, and musicians. We chose Jimmie Stamps, of Thornwell fame, to guide our destinies for the first year.

With the class under the leadership of Jerry McKenzie of Honea Path, S. C., we returned the following year as sophomores (our highest ambition was to be such), and although many had seen fit to drop out, we still had sixty-four men on the roll. After doing our share in making the frosh feel at home, we settled down for the higher things in college, such as passing off Fresh Math., etc. In athletics we again distinguished ourselves by having some of our men mentioned for the mythical All-State team. The faculty had, by this time, realized that we meant business, and some of our men were seriously thinking of taking all the 'A's that their courses would allow.

September, 1926, saw the Class of '23 again entering P. C. Some new faces were seen in our ranks, while some of the old men failed to return. The fifty-five who answered the roll call chose Lonis Jackson of Iva, S. C., as the goat, (with due apologies to "Governor"). This was the banner year for '23. On the football field were such men as Stamps, Witherspoon, Wilson, Blake, Stevens, Timmons, Blalock, McKenzie, and Wertz - names that can be found in South Carolina football circles at any time. Two of our men, Stamps and Witherspoon, were honored by being placed on the All-State eleven, while still other were mentioned. With this team, composed mostly of members of our class, P. C. won second place both in the State and S. I. A. A. standings. On the track, P. C. won both the State and S. I. A. A. championships; and also a good showing was made in both basketball and baseball. On all of these teams the majority of the men were of the Class of '23. In Charlie Wilson, P. C. has one of the best athletes in any Southern college. He is the only four-letter-man on the campus.

We struggled through our Junior year with very few mishaps, the most important of which was a lyceum course (ask the Presidents). It developed that there were many real leaders in our class, and the members were upholding the standard of, "Give your best or none at all." We contributed men to all important phases of college life, and to end the year right, we honored the Seniors with the Junior-Senior Banquet.

The last page of our book has been turned and now we are Seniors. With additional new men and practically all of the "Old Guard" returning, we have the largest Senior Class in the history of Presbyterian College. Herbert Blake, of Anderson, S. C., is President of the class and, incidentally, the third president of the class to come from Anderson county. Our men now occupy all the important positions of the student body, on its various publications, and in its activities. In athletics we are still on the same high pinnacle, and our class-room work has remained very high. In the R. O. T. C. department, our representatives, while at Camp McLellan, Alabama, this past summer, won second place for general excellence in the entire Fourth Corps area.

During our four years at P. C., we have seen many changes, the most important of which was the change in the presidency of the college. Dr. Douglas answered the call of South Carolina University and after due deliberation, the Board of Trustees, in turn, took one of the Universities best men, Dr. B. L. Parkinson, to head Presbyterian College. The Class of '23, which is the first to graduate under Dr. Parkinson, predicts for him a brilliant future with P. C. Among other changes during our stay were the following: Prof. Gignilliat succeeded Prof. Lilly in the English department; Prof. Brown was added to the history department; Prof. Grafton added to the Freshman Courses in Bible and Math; and Lieut. Taylor succeeded Lieut. Nimmocks, who was transferred to B. M. I. Two fine buildings have also been completed during our "time," Smyth Dormitory and the Leroy Springs Gymnasium. Both of these buildings are of the most modern type and may be compared with the best in the South.

From this account one can easily see why the Class of '23 holds the banner. It has the greatest array of athletes that has ever attended P. C. at any one time, and any debating team, glee club, or other organization representing P. C. cannot be found without a member of the Class of '23 listed as a member. We have among our number many who will compete with the best scholars that have ever attended Presbyterian College.

The time draws nigh. Soon the Class of '23 will be no more in physical presence but still in spirit. It has been true to its Alma Mater; and may the four years that we have spent at P. C. be looked upon as days of pleasure as well as profit.

*"We have fought a good fight,
We have kept the faith."*

The Blue Stocking

"All for P. C., P. C. for All."

VOLUME XXXI.

PRESBYTERIAN UNIVERSITY, CLINTON, S. C.

JAN. 30, 1950

This issue of the Blue Stocking is inaugurating a new plan in regard to the Alumni column. The staff has decided to publish an article on each class that has finished the Presbyterian University, since Dr. B. L. Parkinson became President. The first class we shall write up is the class of 1928, which is by far the greatest class ever to finish at Presbyterian University.

S. P. Anderson, successor to the wandering poet, Riley Scott, spends his spare time selling his wares to the College boys.

R. A. Barnette is preaching at the home for blind mice at Decatur, Georgia. His eldest daughter graduates from Agnes Scott in June.

Big Ben is chief tinker at the Westclox Watch works.

W. A. Black has invented a new one-cylinder automobile. It is of the bathing beauty variety, stripped down.

"Snaky" Blake retired from the boxing ring last year after holding the heavy-weight title for twelve years.

"Pooley" Blake has lived up to his old nickname. He won the 18.1 balkline billiard championship last summer.

D. S. Blankenship is still working to find the Philosophers stone.

J. Bright is still superintendent of the High School at Ooltewah, Tennessee.

"Squeaky" Brock has made his fortune by the invention of a collapsible corkscrew.

R. R. Fuller is preaching in the First Mormon Church of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Coach Cash Godbold's girl track team was the fastest representative at last year's Olympics. They all say "Cash, Poppa."

Art Grafton's oldest daughter is a freshman at Converse College. Sam Harden is rivaling Sir Isaac Newton in the advancement of the science of Physics.

"Hub Hubbard" is driving the "College Bus" from Presbyterian University to Winthrop.

A. L. Goldsmith is head of the Lone Scouts of America. He was sued for breach of promise four times, but is still single and happy.

"Ken" Hughes is still carrying the drum case for the 22nd drummer in Sousa's band.

"Governor" Jackson is editor of the Anderson Daily Mail. He is noted for his fearlessness and directness in clearing up crime, especially hit-and-run drivers.

P. S. Jeanes has taken the chair of Economics at Presbyterian University. He is still following in the footsteps of his illustrious kinsman.

"Turk" Johnson sings for the Metropolitan Opera Company in order to endorse "Old Golds" the sale of which is prohibited by Law.

E. D. Jones, Jr., is preaching at the Ninth Baptist Church of Mountville.

W. L. Jones went to the wilds of Hindustan and at present has only seventeen wives.

Happy L'heureux, due to his choral enthusiasm, has been sent to Reno to live for six months because he would not swear to stay away from the Follies.

Cater Ligon is the Speaker for the House in the South Carolina Legislature. He is still able to speak with ease and force.

Jerry McKenzie is coaching the Honea Path High School to new heights in the athletics of South Carolina. His team defeated Mountville 7-6 for the Tri-County championship last year.

Dana McLendon is chief advisor on the board for selection of Chorus girls for the Ziegfeld Follies.

"Jem" Montgomery has made a "Fair" success as a dispenser of gasoline in Greer, S. C.

Lonnie Moore decided to join the marines to earn, learn and travel. The latest news is that he is still traveling.

Hayne Prince is at the Gilda Gray Academy of Aesthetic Dancing. His grace cannot be surpassed.

Jack Roberts is selling a hair sheen restorer for disappointed blonds.

John Spratt is the official jailer in the city of Ft. Mill, S. C. The jail is filled at present with a few stray firebugs from Rock Hill.

Jimmy Stamps had his greatest ambition fulfilled last year. He saw his son run 97 yards for a touchdown against Notre Dame to cinch the national championship.

Neil Stevens has been promoted to the position left vacant by the death of W. J. McFarland who was the star cub reporter for the Clinton Chronicle.

J. W. Stewart has attained the prominence of the Presidency of the National debating fraternity, Pi Kappa Delta.

Lucile Stribling has had a splendid success as a designer of Ladies wraps in the establishment of M. Worth, Paris.

"Dimasam" Sumarel has joined an expedition to the west to search out and collect rare specimens of prehistoric animals. His position with the expedition is that of model.

Tom Swedenberg has retired from active service in the army. He distinguished himself in the Mexican War of 1940. The battle cry of his men was "Berger the Brave."

Sleepy Thompson is the mayor of the city of Olanta. He was elected after a hard fight. Sleepy always was a good shot.

Jack Thompson has been very successful in his line of work, that of mixing high-balls and farming.

Shirley Timmons is head coach of Tuskegee Institute. Last year his team defeated Allen University for the southern championship. Jack Wertz is a modern night rider. He stops at Presbyterian University before each gym dance and delivers his wares.

J. D. Whiteside is the president of the firm of Leake and Co., successors to Barret and Co.

Mike Williamson is chief of police at Hamer, S. C. He is noted for his ability to carry one bootlegger and two quarts into the jail at once.

Charley Wilson is the successor to Nick Altrock on the Washington Senators.

G. J. Wilson has developed into a sculptor of great fame. He is working at present on a model of the great stone face.

S. A. Wilson was given the Nobel peace prize in 1949 for the greatest poem of the year. It was entitled "Maude" (not Muller).

James Witherspoon was elected president of the United Cotton Mills of Goldville last week.

Whit Young has established a bus line between his native city of Laurens and Clinton. His seven daughters insure him for seven passengers a night.

P. Knight and his famous Monte Carlo are known throughout the length and breadth of the land.

PROPTER, 1928.

SAMUEL PAUL ANDERSON

Laurens, S. C.

Laurens County Club; Latin Club; Corporal, R. O. T. C.

"S. P." is a preacher's son. Really our biography should end here. But the joke about preachers' sons does not apply in Paul's case. He's a jolly good fellow to be sure, but beneath his banter and good humor there lies a foundation of real things. He has shown this by making a splendid scholastic record.

Paul has a handful of sobriquets. We know him as "S.P.;" Chapel Hill calls him "Stem;" "Cowboy" is another good one.

Dear reader, you should hear his humorously speeches in Literary Society. Talk about your Bill Rogers! Or you should really see him usher at the First Baptist Church. Well, he'll show you a good seat and right next to the one you want.

For life's work, we think he will shine as a Latin professor or a salesman. He certainly ought to, he has been known to sell a good many books without a sample, and as for the Latin, he hasn't won a string of A's from professor Graham for nothing.

"S.P." success is yours. You're "Sitting on Top of the World" and it won't be long now.

"Happy those early days, when I Shined in my angel-infancy."

ROY ALLEN BARNETT
Jefferson, Georgia

Phi Delta Tau

Member of Y. M. C. A. cabinet; Varsity track squad, '26, '27; Freshman track squad, '25.

Roy Allen Barnett is a man worthy of your consideration, a man of true character, in fact, a man in whom we recognize all those qualities necessary to characterize a true Southern gentleman of proven merit.

Roy hails from the thriving metropolis of Jefferson, Georgia, and that city should always be proud to claim him as a native son. This lad from Georgia has always a smile and a pleasant word for everybody. He is capable of abandoned gaiety or of profound thought—this being an essential attribute to a charming personality.

It has been said that still waters run deep, that though words are silver, silence is golden. These sayings sum up very well indeed the characteristics of this deserving young man. Roy has gone his way without braggadocio, minding his own affairs, and always helping a friend in need.

Courage, loyalty, earnestness and integrity are the outstanding characteristics of this lad. With these qualities he has won for himself the admiration and the friendship of all who knew him well.

Now we shall miss you when you are gone. We are looking for great things from you and we know that if you will hold fast to the principles for which you have always stood, that you will always succeed.

"The temple of our purest thought is silence."

ROBERT WILLALLEN BENN
Uniontown, Alabama

Sigma Kappa Alpha, Sigma Upsilon, Gamma Sigma

Corporal, Sergeant, 1st Lieutenant, R. O. T. C.; Boxing Team, '28; Poet, Junior Class; Poet, Senior Class; Collegian Staff; PaC-SaC Staff; Business Manager, Collegian, '28; Officer's Club.

Here is a true son of P. C., one that we are proud to call our friend, and one on whom P.C. shall look with pride.

"Kaire" has made his way through college with remarkable ease, seemingly happy and care-free, but with an inner seriousness that surpasses his years. Ambition, energetic, determined, and with a keen active brain, he has forged to the front of the class. To these qualities add a bright smile, a sympathetic hand, and we have the man, Benn, that we all love.

Such a character as his is only satisfied with conquest. We see him capturing the coveted Sigma Kappa Alpha emblem; writing fiery poetry for the Collegian, capturing the Gamma Sigma and Sigma Upsilon keys; displaying his business and organizing ability as the business manager for the Collegian; and last but not least capturing the hearts of the fair sex.

He has expressed his desire to become a lawyer, and we feel that this is an apt choice for him.

We expect much of you, Robert, and we feel that you will fulfill our expectations.

"Tis time to leave the books in dust,
And oil the unused armors rust."

C. 4th Corps Area, '27; Captain boxing team, '28; Student assistant in Biology, '26, '27; Block "P" club; Wearer of the "P"; Assistant Librarian, '26.

This is "Snaky" Blake, student, naturalist, athlete, gentleman. "Snaky" is such a real all-round man, and has done so much for his Alma Mater during his four years spent here, that this small page allotted cannot contain a just biography.

This lad is an athlete of wide repute. He has been a diligent cinder artist and a invaluable asset to the track team. Among other things to his credit, he is generally considered P.G.'s best trained athlete, and one of our cleanest sportsmen. As P.G. representative he easily captured the light-heavyweight boxing crown of the R.O.T.C. of the Fourth Corps area at Camp McClellan during the summer of '27.

He is an all-round gentleman, a true son of the South. Clean habits and regular, live and let live spirit, application of the golden rule, sincerity—these are some of the attributes that mould his character and make him the beloved member of our student body that he is.

We must now part, "Snaky," but with a man of your ability and foundation in our midst, we feel that the class of '28 will bid fair to the uttermost corners of our planet, and old P.G. will be proud to list you among the old grads.

Here is a man about whom you have been hearing for the past four years. We feel now that his popularity is just reaching its primitive stage. From the record which he has made during his stay with us, we can feel sure of the highest success in his future.

At an early date he received the nickname of "Pooley" and ever since he has been known by that name, "Pooley" has found his way into the hearts of the student body and faculty and has proven himself to be a scholar among his associates.

He was, and still is, a hard fighter. If this is doubted in any way, we only ask you to review his football record. He always hit the line with full strength and has never given up.

This is the type of man that society is calling for, and we give "Pooley" our hands and wish him success, and hope that others will receive him as we have in the past.

In every group of students there are some who are willing but not able, and others who are able and not willing. Rarely does one student combine the characteristics of both groups. But Billy belongs to the class of those who can and will.

Besides being an honor man in his class, Billy has taken an active part in athletics. He has displayed his ability as a player of no mean ability on the Freshman and Varsity teams during his sojourn at P.C. We think that he should have been on the track team—for he has been running neck and neck race with a recent P.C. graduate for the favor of a certain fair damsel who bears a name which is familiar to all who have read the "Courtship of Miles Standish."

May luck and success be with you in the time to come even as it has been in college. We will miss you, Billy, but the Class of '28 will be thinking of a man whom they are expecting to succeed.

Blankenship hails from the "City by the Sea," but knowing the characteristics of the natives of this city, we would prefer to style him a South Carolinian in general. Noble and true he found us, nobler and truer he leaves us. Ambitious, serious-minded, and capable is his past and present yet in his future these will soar to the superlative. Among such characteristics is another equally admirable. He possesses a certain bulldog tenacity which for a certainty will claim the laurels which he has so ambitiously sought to gain. It is not to our discredit that we regard this characteristic with ever so little covetousness.

Blankenship has expressed great ambitions in the field of medicine. We feel sure that his keen scientific mind is well suited for that profession, for even in our midst he has ranked foremost in our rather exclusive scientific order, Chi Beta Phi.

We have loved "old Hankensmit" from the first in spite of his seriousness and determinations. For on the surface there is a pleasant jolly characteristic which is most winning with all humans, not to mention the "fair sex." And his soul yields a personality to be hailed and followed wherever met.

It is for these reasons, old friend, that we are proud of you and that we shall fill and drain our cups to your success.

"Johan" went to the Post Office every school day for four years. What was the object of his desires? "The Chattanooga Times." He deserves one hundred and twelve semester hours for time spent in reading that paper. "Johan" is not from Ootewah. It is now time to correct that impression.

There are two sports which gave John much pleasure while at P.C. - "touch" football, and "bush-league" baseball. Every afternoon found John and his cronies on the field in a hot contest. The seasons for these sports overlap.

The "Profs" at P.C. are well aware of John's ability. Any other mark by his name than "A" was indeed a rarity. In languages especially, the Tennessean proved himself an adept. John was by far the best linguist of the class, learning rapidly and retaining all knowledge. However, his ability was not limited to languages. He stood high in all of his classes.

"Johan" goes forth with a brilliant career behind him. The future lifts out her hands to him, signalling to him, success. John leaves a college full of sincere friends. His motto must have been, "To have a friend is to be one". John's personality drew him many friends. His sincerity kept them. We bid you adieu, "Johan." We have known Squeaky intimately during four years open season on students, and have seen in him a rare fellow—one who combines work and pleasure, and gets the maximum results out of each.

The gods bestowed upon him the twin gift of humor and seriousness, combining with these two the essentials that mark one as a gentleman, a scholar, and a delightful companion, and a man of intrinsic worth.

For those who have the holiday spirit, and find in youth the joys of life, where laughter and merriment reign supreme, hail him as a kindred spirit—a man who does not have to seek pleasure. It comes to him.

When we look back over our college days, we'll drink a toast to the man who reigns as the prince of good fellows.

In writing the biography of a senior it is customary to deal out lavish praise with a general sprinkling of hokum. In Rupert's case this is useless. Here is a man that needs no encorneriums. His worth and value are known to all of his friends and acquaintances.

Rupert has caught and retained something of the spirit of youth. Neat, affable, generous, witty—he's a good fellow. And how!

It is needless to predict success for such a man as he. It is his for the asking.

Pause! dear friends, and cast your eyes upon Ca-h Ellerbe Godbold, better known as "Cash," "Discount," and no doubt "Interest" will be forthcoming. "Cash" hails from Estill, or rather from "The little city with big advantages." He came to the Presbyterian College of South Carolina exactly four years ago bearing on his body the marks of the displeasure of unpropitiated teachers in kindergarten, grades, and high school. Cash still likes for his friends to look on him as a Nero or a Jesse James, but beneath a camouflaged exterior, there pulsates the heart of a Cupid, though it be linked by a thousand chains to a Campaspe. For the ready wit of Cash and his ability to laugh away the tumults and griefs of life have won the hearts of men and women, especially the latter. But Cash claims his share of the serious visions of life time, and has become quite a scholar, Mathematics being the realm wherein he hopes to achieve fame.

On the varsity track squad he has earned his letter and has done his bit to uphold the reputation of the Presbyterian College. In other branches of sports he gave his loyal support as a cheer leader.

Behold admiring lasses, and jealous swains, the handsome countenance pictured above. Goldie swelled our ranks in the Fall of '24, and for two years thereafter he never missed a class a day, or spent a week-end at the local institution of learning. Finally after achieving the haughty rank of Junior, Uncle Sam deemed it wise to send him to Camp McClellan, way down in Alabama, for a six week's course in the art of peeling spuds. Goldie must have found the climate rather HOT for one accustomed to the Piedmont-Hills of the Palmetto State; anyway he NOW spends his week-ends in the deep recesses of Snyth Hall, dreaming over an ever increasing stack of letters bearing the same postmark - Alabama.

Goldie is one of those rare combinations: "A man who neither studies too much or too little, and withal a perfect gentleman." Disdaining personal advancement, he devoted his entire time and energies to the betterment of his Alma Mater, and if a vote were taken by the members of the football squad for the purpose of deciding which man was the best sport among that hardy band, we feel sure that the laurels would be awarded to this native South Carolinian.

Our Good wishes will follow you, Goldie, when you tackle the game of life, for we know that you will continue to abide by the rules of the game, and meet whatever opposition fate has in store for you with the same quiet determination, and courageous heart. Tho' now we part, your pests at life, and friendly smiles will not soon be forgotten.

In every institution of learning there are two types: The man who devotes himself to scholarly pursuits, and his brother, the devotee of athletics, womanhood, and the wine of life. Seldom are such types combined in a single individual, but in Arthur Grafton, all these traits find unity in a personality. He leaves Presbyterian College with a very brilliant scholastic record, but he has shown himself a leader in a number of other prominent activities. He was editor-in-chief of the Pac-Sac; three years a star performer on the varsity track team; a member of the Glee Club; president of the Pan-Hellenic council; and in the latter part of his course, superintended all work in the freshman biology laboratory. Despite these burdens, he has found time to win the heart of one of Clinton's choicest beauties. He passes out from our midst as a favored son of his Alma Mater. Farewell, Arthur, and when your star rises to adorn the richly wrought tapestries of heaven, remember those here who called you brother, and who loved you as friend.

Gentle reader this is none other than Samuel G. Harden better known as Sam. Those of us who have been fortunate enough to know him have found in him the true qualities of a gentleman, a friend indeed, when one really needs a friend.

During his stay at P.C. Sam has found time to take part in many different phases of college life. Due to his success in Economics, Sam soon rose to the position of Varsity baseball manager and has been able to stand up under the heavy strain placed upon his shoulders. He is also one of our famous scientists, having been one of Prof. Fann's right-hand men. We also have reason to believe that Sam besides studying astronomy has also studied the moon from many different angles?

Sam struggled with us thru the hot days at Camp McClellan and due to his faithfulness there he was graduated to first Lieutenant of Company "C," an honor which he rightly deserved and a position in which he proved that he was a real military "genius."

"High Pocket" descended upon us from the mountain wilds of Seneca four years ago. In this short time we have made that wonderful change above; the day of miracles has not passed. "Pocket" has taken interest in several things since he has been in school. Among these are: Glee Club and Orchestra work, the Band, Track, and Winthrop then of course his studies. He proportioned his time so that the latter interest would take up most of his spare time.

The Glee Club was aided by "High Pocket's" bass voice for four years and the Orchestra began their numbers with his "time taps" on the snare drum. "Pocket" showed his musical ability in the R.O.T.C. band and our Commandant chose him as Drum Major while only a junior. His senior year "High Pocket" was chosen as commander of the band.

"High Pocket" leaves school with a great following of friends who wish him well in life. They feel that he has more than enough intelligence to insure success and that in time he will be at the fore in whatever he shall select as a life's work.

The above record hardly bespeaks the true worth of the man whose countenance bedecks this page. "Governor" has chosen journalism as his profession, and we dare say that profession or any other profession is indeed fortunate to gain such a man into its ranks. He came to college to get his B.A., but he is not able to tell you what he will do with it after May 29th, 1928. His home is Clinton, and he has not been one of us in our dormitories. We have missed his versatility and his genial disposition. When he takes time off from his college activities you may find him behind the counter from which he bounds at the first sound of the fire alarm to take his place as a member of the village fire department, or he may be found at the piano or in the field with his pistol or rifle. One of the leaders of the invasion from Wofford in 1926, "Turk," as he is known to many in several communities, has managed to "Carry-on" in spite of his many varied activities. He has made himself a place in the senior class as a member of the varsity debating team, and has been often heard as the "Basso profundi" of the Glee Club.

However, "Turk" is more noted for his "outside activities." His good "Line" has made him many a profitable customer for his several business enterprises, as well as convincing numerous "Profs" as to his knowledge of assigned work.

As we look into the crystal globe that is slowly turning, reveals to us Dudley's four years at P.C. we are impressed by the image of a vibrant and winning personality, and a cheerful and congenial disposition. He is possessed of that rare and priceless quality of making friends wherever he goes, and moreover, with the nerve and will that makes an irresistible appeal to the fair sex.

Dudley not only stands in with the students but he also possesses a peculiar knack of getting a hold upon the professors at the critical time. This is probably due to his unquestionable ability to shoot them a fine during those psychological moments that often occur in the classroom.

Dudley takes life easy and no matter what his surroundings may be, his genial disposition and wholesome optimism soon win for him a warm spot with all who are associated with him. If the situation becomes dull and difficult, he gets off some of his jokes or expresses his impartial frankness.

To predict the future for Jones we will say that if he continues in life as he has done in college, he will be able some day to look back over this plateau from the high peak in the mountains of success.

But during his eventful years at P.C., with the exception of the last four, Willard has been a woman-hater. He has allowed his mind to wander at large through the musty volumes in the library, and, it is rumored, has brought long since dead languages to light. He has held various positions on the campus, some of them being positions which called for ability to handle money, and some for just good, plain, "horse-sense." "Happy" is best known as manager of the Glee Club, having arranged two trips for that organization and singing baritone in addition.

But "Happy" has succeeded where many another P.C. student has failed. That he is a scholar in the truest sense of the word is evidenced by the fact that he is securing his A. B. degree in three years—an achievement that is rather uncommon in this school.

The outstanding characteristic of Lonnie is his ability to help others. Whenever there is an examination or quiz, that is particular difficult, then Lonnie is about the most popular thing on the campus. He can read German from a book in one hand, French from a book in his other, and tell you how to work a chemistry problem all at the same time. But his interests are not confined to scholastic studies alone. The "College Bus" driver tells us that Lonnie is one of his best customers. As Dr. Parkinson would say, "he runs all over the state like a cat." You will never find him at P. College over the weekend.

Haynie's personality will never be duplicated on the campus. Of this we are assured, for one man like Haynie is found in every twenty million. So you see that it is improbable that P.G. will again be so fortunate as to matriculate a similar character.

This young man is famous over South Carolina for his histrionic ability. Each year as the Glee Club presents its programs to the state, Haynie finds himself the idol of the hour because of his dramatic renditions of his numbers. They remember him from year to year, and it is not a bit uncommon for young ladies in the towns the club "makes" to extend personal greetings to Haynie.

For the last four years Haynie has played the piano during chapel. Every morning found him at the piano ready to cheer and encourage his fellow students with song. That was his nature; always willing to share half of the world's jokes with you. However down under this bonyant spirit lies a calm and sincere nature. Haynie has plenty of ability for whatever work he may undertake, and we, his classmates, expect success from his life's effort. Wish we could have four more years together Haynie, but I guess that is out of order, so farewell, comrade.

Laughter will have its day, and he who provokes it will be lord of all. Jack leaves the burdens of the world to be shouldered by those whose hair has turned gray, while his mission is one of cheerfulness. As a missionary of love to lovesick maidens, he is an eminent fulfillment of all "Thoughts, all passions, all delights."

But we would not let you be obsessed by this side of nature of our Adonis. Jack is one of the greatest mile runners in South Carolina, and his literary fame is well-known as a short story writer of sentiments and a tear-producer of merit. He has edited the literary magazine of the Blue Stocking school and brought it to the highest rank.

Jack plans to be a preacher and a living reputation of "Elmer Gantry." If he does not banish monogamy from his creed, we predict that he will addly till the shoes left under the beds of Spurgeon and Moody. Lay on, Jack, and may you leave the world in possession of your youthful dreams and hopes.

Anyone who is able to say exactly what they think, who can be truthful, who will give you an unbiased and honest opinion and at the same time be tactful enough not to hurt anyone's feelings is indeed a man to be admired and imitated; such a person is John Spratt.

John's outstanding characteristics are his frankness and his independence. It is generally understood that he can do anything and get away with it. Many have remarked that they believed he was without an enemy. This would not be such a compliment had he been inactive in the various phases of college activities; but when his college activities are considered indeed such a belief is a very high compliment. (And, too, the above list of his activities is only partially complete; for further reference consult the minutes of the student council from the years 1911 to 1928 inclusive).

Spratt leaves a place at P.C. that will be difficult to fill. He will be missed by everyone from Dr. Parkinson to Martha Dendy. But when he goes out with his "dip" this year P.C. will send forth a well-rounded man, a gentleman, soundly educated, blessed with good judgment, and with necessary vision for success.

This lad hails from Thornewell Orphanage. He was a glittering gem in the flashing diadem of stars who composed the famous little team that copped the high school gridiron championship of this state back in '23. His success followed him through his college career. As his record shows, he played on both freshman and varsity football, basketball, and track teams. He has been listed in the lineup of every P.C. sporting event for which he was an eligible candidate. He ranked among P.C.'s best quarter-milers, and was one of the members of the mile relay team that placed in the Tech Relays in '27.

But lack of space prevents further enumeration. To state briefly, Neil is generous and kindly, determined in his convictions, a friend to all, and a man who dares to be original. He is a psychologist and a philosopher (as Dr. Jones' class records reveal), but we wonder if the thoughts he meditates upon behind the drifting rings of smoke from his ever-present pipe do not often revert to a certain lower state blond who, it seems, has found the much sought key that unlocks his stalwart heart.

It is a pity "J.W." did not find Presbyterian College when he first thought of going to college, for he has certainly proved himself to be a loyal P.C. man since he found his way up from the plains around Auburn Polytechnic.

Walton is one of these quiet sort of boys, his voice seldom rising except when in close debate or when rooting for the home team. J. W. lets his character speak for him, and his actions truly speak "louder than words."

Greek and Logic have not proven any obstacle to this fair headed youth from Atlanta and he has sailed along the deep mysteries of all the printed pages assigned with colors flying and V on nearly every sail. The faculty could always depend on someone knowing the lesson when Stewart was in the class. We notice that tennis, Y. M. C. A. and debating did not take all his time.

Our best wishes go with him as he enters Columbia Seminary, and we are sure we will hear many good things of him as he continues his labors.

"Rudy," as we affectionately call him, is a man of sterling quality. His road has not always been an easy one, but he takes the fair days and the cloudy ones with the same boyishness.

Rudolph has heard the call to the ministry, and whether on some "far-flung battle line," or here at home we will expect to hear of the great things that Rudy has done for the cause of the Man of Galilee. We know it is in him and it will manifest itself, we know.

Whether the girls, or the girl, is concerned, "Rudy" has the proper line of conversation. Letters from his pen climb the mountains to Asheville Normal, so we hear - quite often, too. No, we hardly expect "Rudy" to die a bachelor.

During his four years in our midst "Rudy" has endeared himself to us, has proven a true friend in time of need, has shown his magnanimous generosity, and his worth to the world of men. Good luck, Rudolph, old chap! The road may be long but you'll make the grade.

Now who would think that "Lucile" would leave his beloved Seneca for the wild rough confines of "P" College. His freshman year saw his popularity rise to great heights. In that memorable year Alumni Hall elected him its "savior" and inscribed a stone to commemorate the fact. In this year he also distinguished himself as a sophomore's delight, and enlivened many a weary hour of that gloomy period with his antics.

Although failing to take Analytic Geometry (Study of Curves) under Prof. Martin, it is said he successfully passed several summer school courses in this valuable branch of Mathematics at the Beach.

This wavy (?) haired individual has confined his college activities to song. For four years he warbled with P.C.'s Glee Club and successfully guided it through one of its annual tours. Women and song have been his major studies, though Freshman Math. is also listed in the Registrar's book several times.

His jovial good humor assures him a hearty reception by the world. We wish him well.

"Chunky" is one of the products of Laurens County, and has especially distinguished himself along scholastic lines. He has twice won the honor of attaining Sigma Kappa Alpha.

This lad has displayed his ability in military affairs in the class room, at drill, and in marksmanship. He made a good record at college and at Camp McClellan, Ala. As a reward he received a commission as a first Lieutenant in the local R.O.T.C. unit.

"Chunky" has also taken a part in college athletics. In the center of the football line he made his opponents hate to come his way.

"Berger" in his physical and mental make-up is a leader. From his first year he has been prominent on the campus, especially distinguishing himself in Forensic activities. His ability as a student is pronounced, having been among the first three of the class for four years. The faculty regard him as a cool, level-headed and thorough pupil and the student body respects his sagacious opinions.

Endowed with an astute sense of humor, "Berger" is able to brave the tempestuous moments of life with a smile. He takes his duties seriously, fulfilling requirements with characteristic promptness and thoroughness. "Berger" has shown much interest in the Literary field during his years here, and has decided to take up graduate work in this department. If he succeeds in graduate school as he has in college, we are destined to hear from Tom some day as one of the literary leaders of our country.

As a friend, if it were possible for one to literally make one's friends, "Berger" would be our pattern. He is big enough to overlook one's faults and sympathetic in misfortune and unstinted in his praise of others.

Between the broad bounds of Florence County arises a fair metropolis, Olanta, content with itself. It has, at times, given to the world many valuable things. In 1921 the Presbyterian College was honored by the appearance of one from this fair city who was destined to go down in the legends as "Sleepy," a worder of the God Morpheus who has also wooed with equal success many of the fair goddesses of our Southern states.

"Sleepy" has made a very creditable record; yet we do not think of him as one delving deeply into the realms of books but rather as one who during his spare moments has developed his natural business ability and those inner qualities that endear one to his fellow man—good hearted, amiable, genorous and easy-going.

"Sleepy" is an ardent supporter of P. C., and will long be remembered by the many friends he has made as a man who is always ready to lend a helping hand to anything that is to be done.

The world should welcome such a man.

Jack came to us a stranger and leaves a true friend to all; one whom we can never forget, for we have shared alike in the trials of P.C. and learned to rejoice in her triumphs.

Born not as one of those who herald their appearance with a loud and blatant voice, Jack with his quiet and dignified manner has taken his work where he has found it, and has forced attention in his true sincerity and earnestness of spirit. His nature is revealed in his actions, caring not for the praise of others, he has taken little interest in extra curricular activities, thus escaping a worthless burden—for he has chosen to rather more to please himself.

The goddess of learning has acquired one more neophyte. Jack has all the requirements of a good scholar, diligent and prompt in all his work. His impression upon the faculty has become the envy of many—yet of him it is well deserved.

His life at college has been well worth while. We have all been benefitted by this, for we have felt the warmth of his bright smile, his cheerful disposition and increasing loyalty.

He leaves us a true soul, a polished gentleman and a man—a worthy son of P.C. whose honor shall be augmented by his name.

"Shelley" is known by many names at P.C. "Dittling Man," "Gabriel" and "Evans." Any of these names shouted loud enough, will cause "Dittling Man" to shout back at you. Shirley's fame as an athlete preceded his entrance in our college and it has grown greater as his college records have unfolded. He has been a brilliant performer on the gridiron, on the basketball floor, and on the track, winning letters in these sports.

Perhaps his greatest ability lies in Track. When "Gabriel" was Captain of the Track team in '27, the team won the State and S.I.A.A. Championships; Captain Timmons breaking the record in the S.I.A.A. high hurdles and high jump.

However, with all his athletic prowess, "Evans" is a most likable kind of a fellow and is not in the least conceited. He claims to be a terror with the women but I know a certain Atlanta girl who makes him appear mild and meek when she's around.

Shirley has been blessed with a good body and a good mind. He has the personality that wins friends and he is by nature sincere. These qualifications point to success in this old world and this old world is lucky to get Shirley. "Goodbye "Dittling Man," we had 'em.

Stop! Look! Listen! Dear friends, this is Charlie, alias, "Goldie," "Duck Soup," "Boss," "Ink." Take your choice. He will quickly answer to any one of these and with the same smile and good humor that makes your asking well worth the trouble.

"Ink" is one of those all-around real men. He is the only one of the class of '28 who holds four letters for splendid work in four different spots. Many a moon will pass before we forget Charlie's cries of "Duck Soup!" on the field, which gave heart to his teammates and spurred them on to greater victory.

"Boss" is one of those who believes in having "fun" during the time for pleasure and then becoming serious when the occasion demands. And when the time for exams rolls around, Charlie is always there with "hells on."

"Stone" winters in South Carolina and spends the summer in Alabama. From his Freshman year, "Stone" has held us enthralled with his tales of Alabama bear hunts. He has had more narrow escapes than Tarzan of the Apes ever had. "Stone" should capitalize on these lies, for they are stranger than fiction. However, after six weeks in his dear Ma. last summer at Uncle Sam's summer resort, we are ready to believe anything about the state.

You are probably wondering how Stone received his nickname. His full name is, "Great Stone Face" Wilson. He acquired the title because of his ability to study amid the greatest confusion. Bull sessions did not phase "Stone" if he was bent on studying. Nothing could gain his attentions from his books except one word "girls." They have always held a wondrous attraction for him and from his successes, he holds a like attraction for them. I might mention a certain school teacher.

"Stone" is popular with the boys. He is a good friend, always willing to do one a favor and always greeting one with a sincere salutation. He is a loyal supporter of P. With long legs and wit to match there arrived four years ago a lanky lad from the county of Abbeville, S. C., to grace the Presbyterian campus. Why? Well, it is reported that he sought learning, but no one has ever proven this unjust accusation. Some of the campus sleuths report that there are some doubtful grounds upon which an indictment might be secured, for it is said he took Math and Physics consistently with good grades. It is known, however, on good authority, that he has never hurt himself studying, most of his hours for study having been taken in writing letters for a Winthrop address. "Essay's" college honors show that his popularity has not been confined to the weaker sex. He has been a dabbler in art and song and a member of various organizations on the campus. Surely the world will give this versatile young man success.

We can say truthfully of "Spoon" physically, a man; mentally, a student; morally, a gentleman. What more should be said of any one? As an athlete, "Spoon" has etched his name deeply and vividly on the walls of sportdom of our South. He was recognized as the best tackle in the S.L.A.A. for two years, while his own State voiced him like honors. "Spoon" deserved these notices for he carried size, science, and spirit into every game. P.C. will miss this man next fall when the whistle is blown for the first game. His place on the team will be hard to fill.

"Spoon" did not only star as a football player, but gained much prominence as a basketball player. In fact his team-mates thought so much of his ability that they elected him to captain the team. However, because of the fact that he was being graduated at the end of the first semester, he had to resign his honor.

Of his student endeavors we point to the fact that he was able to get his diploma at the end of three and a half years work. He stood well in all of his classes and the professors recognize his ability.

A gentleman always, loyal to his Alma Mater, considerate of his fellow students, and a tried and true friend. With his many talents "Spoon" should be a success out in the world; we wish him well.

Fellows, this is "Whit," "W.L." or "Young." He answers to any or all three of them. He comes to us from the little town of Laurens. For four years he has been in the city and we believe he has begun to like city life.

At all times he has shown himself in every respect to be all that an ideal young Christian gentleman should be. Because of these gentlemanly traits we love and respect him.

His four chief characteristics are, loyalty, generosity, sportsmanship, and cheerfulness. As a possessor of these four qualities he has been a good example to many of us. For these we love and admire him.

Junior Class Poem

*Full three years has drifted
The bark "Twenty-Nine,"
Three summers have wafted
The breezes uplifted
Our sails from the brine.*

*How far seems the dear land,
We left long ago;
Where glittered the cold sand,
Where gathered the famed band
Of Comrades alone.*

*We've wandered like pirates
And sailed o'er the seas,
Cheering disconsolates,
Drinking with bonny mates
Life to the lees.*

*But friends, the time's coming,
And soon will be here,
We'll turn in our roaming,
Like pigeons in homing,
To kiss the night air.*

*Though crash go the billows,
And long whines the wind,
We'll head for the willows,
Lay out our soft pillows,
And sing the day's end.*

Junior Class History

On a very eventful day in our lives we, the members of the Class of '20, arrived at P.C., that College we had often heard of, and now had to live in, to learn, to love, to honor, and to obey. We were all alike in two respects: we were green and on each head could be seen the blue garnet cap which we were compelled to buy at the earliest possible date.

Even though Christmas brought with it many presents and our birthdays were never forgotten (for the first time!), we survived the era that made a lasting impression on our minds. Though we were enshrouded in a veil of ignorance, we did creep out and venture into college activities. We were well represented in football, basketball and baseball, and won the state Championship in Freshman Track. "Pete" Dunlap was our class president and led us on to victory.

After the care-free hours of the summer, we gradually emerged from the verdant stage and returned to P. C. to enter another state much more pleasant and long looked forward to. We felt as wise as Solomon, and we did impress this fact upon our friends, the new-comers, even though we couldn't get our professors to think so. This year, besides being class officer and furnishing athletic material, some of our number became officers of student, literary, and religious organizations. We began to realize that many duties would be ours; but as true sons of P.C. we welcomed them by giving our best.

And thus we are Juniors, Jolly Juniors! There has grown upon us a certain feeling of inseparableness. We are as one. Our contribution to this student body is one of merit. We are not ashamed but proud of our record in all college activities. Yet we look forward to Senior life. We reach out for new duties, new responsibilities, new fields to conquer.

Of Faith and gentleness
Of Service and Sacrifice."*

Campus Leaders From The Junior Class

As the PaC-Sac for 1928 goes to press the news comes of the elections for offices of importance on the campus for the coming school year. As is natural, the majority of these offices have been filled from the rising Senior Class. We feel called on, however, to make some comment on the good judgment the student body and the various organizations have shown in their selections, and the PaC-Sac is glad to be able to make public announcement in its pages of the honors that have been attained by these, the out-standing leaders of the Presbyterian College Campus.

The student body has chosen for its pilot for the school year 1928-1929, Frank Pearce. The road before this young man is a hard one, but his friends are confident that he will come through with flying colors and an enviable record for his administration. Pearce is an outstanding man on the gridiron and oval, and in these departments has given no little to the glory of Presbyterian. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

For vice-president, the assembled students singled out Roy Hogrefe. Roy is well known in South Carolina as a great football man and sprinter, but to his schoolmates in the little town of Clinton, he is respected for his unfailing loyalty and modesty. Roy is a member of Chi Tau Fraternity.

In choosing a man for the editorship of the 1929 PaC-Sac, the students realized the difficulty as well as the honor which were involved. They chose well when they isolated Jack O'Neal for the position. O'Neal has the energy and application needed for such a job, and we feel confident that with the cooperation of a good staff, P. C. may well look forward to one of the best year books in her history. O'Neal is a member of Chi Tau Fraternity.

As running mates for the editor of the Annual, Louie Dunlap and L. T. N. Keels were selected. These two have proven their worth as business men, and are not afraid of the titanic labor before them. "Pete" Dunlap will be business manager of the PaC-Sac for the coming year, and Keels will officiate as advertising manager. Dunlap is a member of Chi Tau Fraternity and Keels is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau.

The obvious thing was done when Bruce Martin was picked to steer the Collegian through its difficult season. Martin is interested in literary work and has not failed to entertain the personnel of Presbyterian with his efforts this year. It is generally felt that the Collegian is facing one of the best years of its existence, and we feel no fears with Martin at the helm.

W. K. Thompson has received on his capable shoulders the task of managing the Collegian. He is well fitted for the job and is ready to give his best to it. Thompson is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau Fraternity.

Bill Woodward was selected by the student body for the position of advertising manager of the Collegian. Upon him will largely depend the success of the magazine for the coming year, since the magazine must of necessity rely a great deal upon the advertising for its financial success.

The Presbyterian College Y. M. C. A. will be headed in 1928-1929 by Roy Hogrefe. He is an upstanding Christian gentleman and one who is familiar with and eager to take hold of the duties of his office. We congratulate the association on its selection.

El Brinson will serve as president of the Y. M. C. A. in the absence of the president. Brinson has served on the cabinet a number of years and is thoroughly familiar with his work. To the difficult and arduous labor involved in the presidency of the Pan-Hellenic Council, Spencer Elliott was elected. This is one of the hardest jobs on the campus, since it means the direction and responsibility of the Annual Pan-Hellenic banquet.

At an even later date there has come to our ears the news of the Senior Class elections. Our space is limited but we feel privileged in being able to announce the president.

As president of the rising Seniors, Arnold Marshall was chosen. Marshall was president of the class during the past year and through his hard and faithful work has won the appreciation and admiration of his fellow classmen. Marshall is a member of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity.

Sophomore Class Poem

*The days are swift and pleasant here,
And yet another passing year
Of those short few that bear us on
Has played its humble part and gone.*

*Then let us not sit idly by,
And watch the hours swiftly fly,
And mourn for moments borne away
Upon the wings of yesterday.*

*But rather let us up and do
The things that we've intended to,
The iron's red, ours is the blow
That shapes fore'er our weal, or woe.*

—POET, 30.

Sophomore Class History

The merit of an historian lies not in the high-sounding phrases with which he so often tries to conceal his facts, but in the concise truth which he presents. It will, then, be the aim of this short history, to give a few facts about the Class of '30.

The Class was born early in September, 1926. The exact date can well be forgotten, for we do not claim, as most historians do, that it marked an era in the life of the College. Another freshman class is just another freshman class; nothing to make a fuss over, but rather something to be patient with. And so this freshman class took its baptism of fire.

Came football season. And though the Blue Stocking very kindly handed out a good many bouquets, and the student body whooped a few times, we must admit that the fresh football team was, with a few exceptions, mediocre. However, although the debit side of the schedule far overshadowed the credit side, the team qualified. We can excuse defeat, when the team shows fight; so we can excuse this team.

It was with the basketball season that the Class of '30 began to hit its stride. A well balanced squad romped around the state, winning all but three of a hard schedule of seventeen games. In the final game of the season, P.C. lost the State Freshman Championship to Furman Fresh, whom they had previously defeated once.

Spring brought baseball and track, and since both of the varsity teams were exceptionally good that spring, the fresh contented themselves mainly with studying and watching. A lot of promising material showed up during the season, but with the exception of a track meet with Furman, there were no matches for the freshmen that spring.

But the class by this time had shown that there were other sides to its personality, besides the athletic side we so often see to the exclusion of all else. Before the end of the year it was apparent that there were some strong leaders in the class, and that the students organizations were being forced to make way in their memberships for young men who proved themselves indispensable.

The president of the class for this year of struggle, was A. B. McNaull, of Columbia, S. C. He gave way to Harold Walker, also of Columbia, who has been at the helm for the past year.

As we look back at the Sophomore year of the Class of '30 we have a feeling of satisfaction. The members of the class have shown a commendable ability to fit into college life and activities. In basketball, especially, they have been a great aid; but in other lines they have also contributed much. The college may well feel assured that when the time comes, there will be a man from the Class of '30 who can and will, ably fill any position of responsibility on the campus.

It is with a regard to actual facts that we can say that the class of '30 is a versatile class. It is not outstanding to the point of brilliancy in any line, but neither is there a single field in which it is not ably represented by one or two at least. There are debaters, orators, scientists, journalists, athletes, musicians, actors and leaders.

But it is not on all these qualities that the Class of '30 bases its hopes for remembrance when they have gone. There is something greater, the ability to build up friendships. And it is here that the members of the Class of '30 have really made a name for themselves.

Freshman Class Poem

*when all our freshman work is done,
and then our deeds review;
may we find nothing there to shun,
or aught we've failed to do,*

*and when as good sophomores we are,
we'll have a lot of fun making those rats, as black as tar, to through the gauntlet run,*

*but after that, we'll juniors be,
and quit our funny stuff;
we well prepare to put to sea,
on life's sea, calm or rough,*

soon after that, so dignified, as seniors, we will start out in life's spaces, oh, so wide, and from our alma mater part,

and then in life we'll never do a thing to bring us shame, or cast a shadow on our school or blacken her good name.

Freshman Class History

It was a beautiful day in September, 1927. The grass was green, the earth was breathing softly, and overhead, in a deep clear sky, birds were wheeling lazily. And we came striding down the campus with a laugh in our eyes and the dew of innocence fresh on our lips. The laugh lasted just three days—until school opened; the dew of innocence has faded but little better.

But the succeeding days were happy, nevertheless. They were happy although for a few days exploring fingers found remnants of soap in the ears, and although it would have been nice to eat from the mantlepiece for a week or two. But they were worth it—every bit of it—for in those days we found the comradeship of new friendships, felt ourselves being led into the pressence of something bigger than ourselves. Before, we were outsiders—now, we belong.

It was not long before the novelty wore off and we were able to settle down to the routine of college life. It was then that we began to look to the athletic field, and to glory together in the football team that was being developed under our eager eyes. How we followed the record of that team! The team that lost to Clemson and Gadsden, but won great victories from Furman, Newberry, and Davidson. And we ask you, was there ever a "fightinger" team than that which sent home the heavier Furman boys in defeat? Have you ever seen a better display of football?

But football passed, and after it came basketball. Here we were not so successful, but from the list of games we are able to look back at several victories that bring a thrill to all P.C. basketball fans. We only wish that more of those fans could have seen the one-point victory from Newberry in the closing game of the season.

But best of all are the track and baseball teams that Spring has brought us. At the time of going to the press, we have not been able to witness any contests of these teams, but from the wealth of promising material we feel safe in predicting favorable seasons for both. Indeed, we shall be surprised if the track men do not give someone a hard run for the state championship.

There have been countless activities that we have not space to recount in these pages. But though they cannot be recorded in this history, they will never be forgotten, for they are all enshrined in our hearts in the place where we keep all the cherished memories of the past year.

This has been the first and hardest and most enjoyable, so they say, of the years we are to have here. Three more are to follow. In them we shall cultivate and train up the shoots that will spring up from the seeds that we have already planted. The foundation has been laid, and we hope it is a good one. Now comes the task of rearing on the rugged base the turrets and towers of our dreams.

Best of all, we have been inspired by P. C. with the strength and foresight and courage to go forward. There may be backward glances, but never a backward step. We feel hopeful and confident that the Class of '31 will contribute its share to the building of a more glorious Presbyterian.

Why P. C. Wins

W. A. JOHNSON
Director of Athletics

When Walter Johnson came to Clinton a dozen years ago, as a beardless youth to hear the hoots that roared in their caves around P. C., he faced difficult circumstances. Facilities were limited and men were few. In his first season he displayed that dash and courage which won for him the affection of his boys, and the respect of all who knew him. For with a bare handful of inexperienced men Walter moulded the great machines that have successfully mowed down every college in the state of South Carolina.

The great coach has had offers from other schools of greater size, but he has loved his friends in Clinton so well that he has remained with us. His successes have brought him the feathered cap and the title of the "Miracle Man". His charming personality has won for him the undying love and devotion of the men that have drilled under his direction, and caught by contagion the flame of courage and fighting spirit which has spelled success for many a field of battle.

We can never say enough of his virtues. His faults are few. It is one of the priceless heritages of Presbyterian College graduates to go out into the world and recall and read of the achievement which P. C. has reached under the guiding hand of Walter Johnson.

L. S. McMILLIAN
Assistant Director

The year 1915 was an important one for P. C. athletics. It brought to the local campus two men who were destined to play a commanding role in placing Presbyterian as a recognized competitor and challenger on the sport map of the South Atlantic Coast.

McMillian played for P. C. in 1915, and 1916; went to France to serve his country during the war, and played again as all-South Carolina end in 1919 and 1920. He was recognized as one of the greatest football and basketball players that ever competed in the state, while as a first baseman in baseball, he played brilliantly.

Lonnie was not through with his Alma Mater when he received his diploma in the Spring of 1921. After a year of work with the Clinton High School he came to P. C. as Freshman coach in 1922, and immediately began to show his abilities as coach as well as his talent as a participant in the gridiron game. For five years, he has turned out fighting teams, that have made good records, and they have been the men which fitted into the positions on the varsity squad under Johnson.

Known and feared as one of the best offensive mentors in Southern gridiron circles, McMillian can look forward to many years of excellent service to his friends and College at Clinton.

P. C. 0, Clemson 0

Practically all of the students went to Tigertown to witness the opener with the Cadet eleven and they were rewarded with a display of real football, if not with victory. The entire team performed as though it were mid-season and gave the spectators many a thrill.

The Blue Hose threatened the Tiger several times but were unable to put in the final punch which would have meant victory and the passing attack of Presbyterian College fell a bit short of the past season, but with the addition of Owens to the famous Stamps-Wilson combination quite a bit of color was added to this phase of the game. Owens got away for forty yards on one pass. Wilson made a beautiful finger tip catch of a long pass late in the third quarter which proved one exciter of the fray.

Monledous, an end for Clemson snatched a long pass from his Captain and evaded all the Johnsonmen except Stamps, who brought him down in the very shadow of the P. C. goal and the P. C. Line, aided by the work of Timmons, Wither-spoon and McKenzie held the Tiger for downs. The game ended in mid-field.

Stamps starts on his sixty-five yard run for touchdown against Ogelthorpe.

P. C. 6, Marines 6

The Hose went into a second tie with the Parris Island Marines on their reservation, each team scoring a touchdown but being unable to add the extra point. The Hosemen were handicapped with the heat, but their brain was superior to the brawn of the Leathernecks in the first half, whereas brawn survived the heat and enabled the Marines to score in the last stage.

The Hose scored after a fifty-yard march and a short pass from Stamps to Owens. Stamps attempted a drop-kick, but an errant breeze blew an otherwise perfect score wide by but few inches.

The Devil-Dogs were chafing from their rough handling by the Hosemen and came back strong in the second half. Their attack was led by Ryckman and Cummings, at full-back and tackle, respectively.

"Johnny" Moore was the scintillating gem in this game, returning punts like a real veteran. Barnwell at Guard also did some classy work for the Garnet and Blue.

The Calvinists chalked nine first and, while the Marines were able to get but five, Stamps & Co. completed seven passes for eighty-nine yards, the cohorts of Capt. Davis made two for thirty-seven.

Charlie Wilson sets himself to meet a fast one.

P. C. 14, Wake Forest 7

The second annual clash between the two institutions in Asheville was chosen as the big bill headliner for the dedication of the New Asheville Municipal Stadium. Captain Jimmy Stamps made the two touchdowns, the first after Charlie Wilson had placed the ball on the 11-yard line, and the second touchdown which came in the third quarter when Stamps pulled up his Blue Stockings and pulled out off-tackle for a 33-yard run, in the meantime pulling himself away from James, the speedy Deacon quarterback.

The Demon Deacons could avail nothing against the Presbyterian line, and had to resort to an aerial game, and it was chiefly by this route that they were able to score their touchdown in the closing moments of the game. Wilson foiled a would-be touchdown when he soared high in the air to knock down a pass from James to the Baptist Captain, Ober. James hurled a beauty to Connally for 15 yards who advanced eight more before being downed, and it was from this march that the North Carolinians scored.

To quote the Asheville Citizen: "Wake Forest found this tigerish little band of Blue Stockings, led by the Sensational Jimmy Stamps, equal to the drive and push in Capt. "Monk" Ober, et al, while the Deacon line was battered and the ends brushed aside as the 'four flying stockings' unraveled."

P. C.7, Mercer 26

The Blue Stockings suffered their first defeat of the season against a new enemy in a new land, the Mercer Bears, having as their chief point winner and distance consumer, the invincible "Phoney" Smith, who was the only man to score on Georgia prior to Tech-Georgia game.

The game was not as onesided as the score indicates, three times were the Blue Stockings foiled in their efforts to score, being repulsed as near as the one-yard line.

Mercer scored in the first three minutes of play after they had received the kickoff from the toe of Captain Stamps, in the second quarter they scored two, it was in this stage of the game that Smith intercepted a pass and raced eighty yards for a score. The Bears repeated in the third quarter with one touchdown and it was in the fourth quarter when the Hose were finally enabled to muster the necessary strength and put over a score. The touchdown was made by Stamps.

The fourth quarter was a P. C. period, the Hosemen opened with a bang and ran the ball over, around and through the Bears' line but at the one-yard line they found the stone wall and the attack availed nought.

There were no outstanding stars in the game insofar as the Hose were concerned, every man putting out his utmost in their valiant effort to stop the lightning "Phoney" who was about 90 per cent of the Bears.

P. C. 7, Wofford 7

The Calvinists went into their third score-lock of the season in the fifth game of the year, when Wofford came to Clinton to avenge the overwhelming defeat of last year at the hands of the mighty Hosemen.

In the early part of the second quarter, after the ball had been advanced down the field by Stamps, Owens and Wilson toting it, Stamps passed fifteen yards to Timmons for the touchdown. The try for point went wild but a Terrier tackle was offside and the officials ruled the point.

Early in the third quarter the Hose started a drive that seemed to be labelled "touchdown" but when the ball fell dead over the goal line, the label was detached. It was in this quarter that Wofford recovered a fumble and on an 18-yard pass from Lockman to Kennedy, knotted the score, with the aid of Jones' place kick.

This gave the Terriers courage and they attempted to do that which they had been pointing for all season, defeat the brave Blue Hose, but the weary Johnsonmen held their own and the very best that all could do was realize that the score was tied and the teams had done exceedingly well under the blistering rays which poured down upon them, and wait another twelve months to see the annual Hose-Terrier clash, in Spartanburg.

P. C. 8, Erskine 0

Playing before some 3500 spectators, most of whom were fair Winthrop daughters, the Calvinists trounced the Seeders 8-0, in Rock Hill.

The entire scoring of the game took place in the third quarter of the fray. Wilson intercepted a pass by Parkinson and twisted, squirmed, dodged and flashed through the Erskine team for a 55-yard run which brought the stands upon their feet with a gasp followed by a resounding cheer. Stamps missed the try for point and a few moments later Timmons raced back and blocked Reed's punt and fell upon it for safety, ending the scoring for the day, and called 8-0.

The Presbyterian team was launching a steam roller attack which looked good for a score when the timekeeper called for half-time with the ball in Presbyterians possession on the one-half yard line and second down. The spectacular play of the day which preceded this by a few moments was a pass for 16 yards from Stamps to Blalock who was forced out of bounds.

The Blue Warriors netted 215 yards from scrimmage, while the Crimson and Gold men were able to net but 110 by the same route. The first and tens stood at 10 for the Presbies and four for the 'Ceders.

Reed and Parkinson who played stellar ball in the backfield bore the brunt of Erskine's attack and displayed a wonderful brand of football a la Phillips.

P. C. 13, Newberry 0

Starting the game with the P. C. second string backfield, the Indians were tormented and tantalized and then Coach Johnson sent his four horsemen, Capt. Stamps, Wilson, Moore and Owens, and they did the scoring for the Hose, touchdowns being marked up for Owens and Stamps. Owens got his by racing 50 yards after intercepting a pass, in the third quarter. At one stage of the game he scooped up a fumble and raced forty yards, but this was all for charity, as P. C. was ruled as being offside.

Stamps got the first touchdown, with a short line jab, after he had been assisted in the advance by Wilson and Owens. Moore shone brilliantly in his return of punts, reeling off from five to 25 yards nearly every time.

The Redmen were disheartened by the attack of the Knitted-wearmen and they played stubbornly with their backs to the wall, and they were greatly disheartened at one stage of the game when Stevens downed a punt by Stamps on the one-yard line, but they were punted to safety, going thirty-five yards and it was here that "Mite" raced back 25 yards with it, making the initial score possible.

"Cork" Barnwell was hurt seriously in the third stanza, being replaced by Beckman at guard.

P. C. 6, Oglethorpe 14

Having lost their horseshoe on the slow Seaboard train to Atlanta, the Blue Hose were forced to bow to the Petrels in the Gate City, in their second appearance there, winning over Oglethorpe there last year by 18-13.

The game took many unfortunate turns for the Hose, on the initial kick-off Taliaproro received Stamps 55-yard kick on his own 5-yard line and ran directly up the sideline for 95 yards for the first Petrel score. On the kickoff this time Stamps returned 15 and looped a long pass to Owens for 38 who was downed on the 16-yard line, but a 15-yard penalty halted the possibility of a score.

With three minutes remaining in the first quarter Stamps took the ball from the Hose 35-yard line and escorted by Boss Wilson past the Oglethorpe would-be tacklers raced the 65 yards to the lone Stocking score.

In the second half the Hose outgained the Settlers but were unable to convert when near the line. A thriller was brought out when the long punt of Owens was fumbled and recovered by an anxiously waiting tackler, who was down under it, and when Charlie attempted to crash thru, and when Stamps again attempted to skirt right end, and Timmons frocked after a pass, and the ball went over in the shadows.

In the fourth quarter Garlington dashed thru the secondary defense for 17 yards, and the second Petrel touchdown, he likewise added the extra point.

P. C. 6, Citadel 7

The Bulldog Cadets and the Hosemen scrapping for turkey on Thanksgiving day in Charleston came very near splitting the turkey, as they were two very evenly matched teams, each team getting seven first-downs, and the Hose gained 122 yards from scrimmage, while the Cadets got 115.

Just before the first half ended, which was undisputedly a Presbyterian half, Stamps raced 25 yards for a touchdown after picking up Hasselmeyer's fumble, but Dick Brown broke thru and blocked the try for point by Owens.

At the start of the second half Citadel started the rumpus and kept the upper hand the remainder of the game. It was in the third quarter that Thompson recovered a Presbyterian fumble and then Capt. Don Blanding of the Bulldogs in two plays of fourteen yards and one foot respectively put it over for the Cadet score, Dick Brown dropping the oval thru the uprights for the extra and winning point.

"Presbyterian was going great guns in that first half. Stamps, unquestionably the best passer in the state, was baffling the cadets with his tosses. He throws a long ball from a deep position, and, fast as the Citadel ends are, they couldn't keep him from holding the ball long enough to pick out his men for four beauties," so says the Charleston News and Courier.

The loss of Captain-elect Witherspoon just as the season began, called for the election of a new captain, and Palmer Knight, another stanch guard was chosen to succeed the stonewall made by "Spoon."

The team won its first encounter, that by a score of 35-17, over the fast Ware Shoals Y. M. C. A. team, but they were not so successful in their initial collegiate encounter and they were forced to wait till they should meet the Wofford Terrier in his own kennel and bowl him over, and cause the sports writer of Spartanburg Journal to say: "Charlie Wilson's all-round excellence in passing, shooting and handling himself on the floor made him the outstanding star of the game." He was likewise high scorer.

The first collegiate encounter was with Carolina in Columbia which was dropped by the locals, score being 30-22. They likewise had lucked a loss at the hands of the College of Charleston in their initial appearance at home, losing by 36-31. Furman overwhelmed them during exams by 16-22. The next week they bowled over the fast Oglethorpe Petrels from Atlanta, by 35-24. Bobbie Caldwell at center, led both teams in scoring, getting 12 points.

The usual loss occurred when the Pacific Team of Columbia was met, but the good treatment and good sportsmanship of the wingers more than atones for the loss. The score was 15-22.

On the Charleston trip the Hose lost to Citadel by 53-30, and defeated the College of Charleston by 43-41. On their return trip they lost to Pacific in Columbia by 55-33. The Charleston Courier said, ". . . . Mac Adair at forward, was the boy who came through unfailing in the last ten minutes to keep P. C. in the lead." This was concerning the College of Charleston game.

With Dunlap, M. Adair, Knight and Wilson out of the game due to sickness and Caldwell thrown out on fouls in eight minutes, the Hose lost to Newberry 43-29. They likewise lost to Furman during this slump, 17-21. They then journeyed to Asheville and lost to Wake Forest by a score of 36-29.

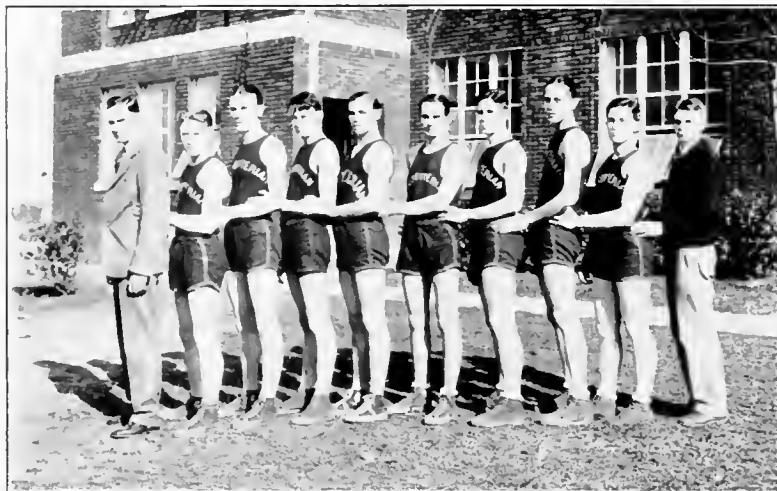

The curtain fell on the 1923 season with a bang, but with a loss, and a hard one to bear. In this game it was that Capt. Knight bore to the fore, and Bill Adair with the ball a bare foot from his hands as the pistol signalled the end of the game, the toss knotting the score and necessitating an extra period, with Wofford emerging victorious by 37-36.

The entire team will report next year intact, except for the loss of Captain Knight and Charlie Wilson, and the prospects are most bright for the 1929 cage season.

Varsity Baseball Prospectus

Many have been the days since the crack of the bat has been heard on the College campus and the season which is just now opening is being looked forward to with much interest as the Blue Stockings are sure to present a heavy hitting, and sure-fielding machine, as has been the custom of Coach Walter Johnson in the years that have past.

In whipping the machine into shape, Coach Johnson faces only a single problem, that of the shortage of pitchers caused mainly by the marriage and consequent withdrawal from college of the invincible Chester Martin, with but one years varsity fame hung upon his brow. But to take his place well will be Palmer Knight, right-hander supreme, fresh from a full summer season with South Hall, L. L., in semi-pro circles. Knight performed as a vet last year, and with the extra training that he received there he will be in tip-top shape and is even now, before the start of the season, sending them down the alley with a startling degree of accuracy. He has signed with Greenville, (S. C.) for a tryout in Sally league circles upon his graduation. Martin also going there for a trial.

The team is being captained by Charles Woodrow "Ink-Boss-Goldie" Wilson, who is the property of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league, and played just enough last summer not to lose his amateur standing; he is looking forward to another year of "duck-soup" reception at short.

The first team at present is composed of Wertz on the initial sack, Moore on the keystone, Wilson at short, Owens on the hot corner, while Brunson is doing the receiving from the offerings of Knight, Bill Adair and Caldwell. In the gardens are seen Pete Dunlap at the right fence, Christy Matheson at the left wall and Eagle Bankhead scouting out for birdies in the neutral position.

There are a wealth of reserves for all positions, and Coach Johnson can immediately call to his aid a good man in case of any tie-up in the perfect machine which he is now whipping into shipshape.

The schedule of games, incomplete at present, includes the following encounters:

Track Prospectus

With the reputation of their predecessors as champs of the State and of the S.L.A.A., the track men of 1928 are hitting hard and aiming at the mark set by the 1927 galaxay of stars on the paths of South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama.

There is certainly one man who can be depended upon for 15 points in every meet and that man is Roy Hogrefe who amassed some 85 or 90 points last year, doing the 100 in 10 flat, the 220 in 21.5 and broadjumping around 23 feet and 10 inches. But there are other men who will place well up in the scoring, Pearce and Marshall with their dashing and hurdling; Roberts, state champ of the mile; Wilson with the Javelin and the discus can be counted upon for points, hurling the spear in a dual meet with Furman for over 177 feet, last year. The comes the steady winner of all times, Shirley Timmons, Shirley with his performance in the high jump and high hurdles holds the S.I.A.A. record in the latter at 15.1 sees. He holds the high jump record jointly with Robinson of Ga. Tech. who made the record in 1911 when Tech was a member of the S.I.A.A. It stood for 13 years before being touched. The height being 5 feet 11 3-4 inches.

Presbyterian holds three state records and ties for the fourth, the 120 high hurdles held by Timmons at 16 flat; the javelin by Wilson at 161 feet 1-2 inch; the broad jump by Hogrefe at 23 feet 9 1/4 inches; and a tie on the 220 held by Hogrefe, and Hammett of Furman at 21.5 secs. Hogrefe holds the honor of being the only man who has scored three first places in the State meet. With all these men in ranks this year and with many others who can also be counted upon for points, the year looks most bright for the year under Coach Lonnie McMillian who points again for the flag in all meets, including the State and S.I.A.A. meets.

Following is the track schedule for 1923:

- March 31 Carolina, at Columbia.
- April 7 Furman, at Clinton.
- April 14 Tech Relays, at Atlanta.
- April 21 Emory, at Atlanta.
- April 27 Furman, Wofford, P. C., at Clinton.

The Honorary Fraternities

Perhaps a word or two on the progress of the various honorary fraternities on our campus during the last twelve months, would not here be amiss. Some note should be made of their accomplishments and we can think of no more permanent place for this record than in these pages.

Largest in its national scope is the forensic fraternity Pi Kappa Delta. Under the leadership of Mr. Swedenberg this year it has carefully supervised the many debates and other oratorical contests in which the school was entered, and has shown the way to more than a few. Their stimulus to such activity on the campus can not be over valued.

Sigma Upsilon, honorary literary fraternity has felt rather keenly the loss by graduation of a number of its leading lights but with the initiation of some of the best that the campus has to offer in the way of underclassmen, its story next year should be another renaissance. Roberts has been the head of this organization during the current year.

Chi Beta Phi, specialist in scientific circles, has had a year under the guidance of Jack Wertz that leads to great hopes for next year. With the addition of the B. S. degree to the curricula there should be a greater interest than ever in this splendid organization.

Lambda Phi Gamma, Mecca of the music lovers, this year rewarded a number of men for their service with the Glee Club and Orchestra with admission to its fold. Roberts was also the head of this lodge.

Sigma Kappa Alpha, the scholastic order, remained much as it has ever been and ever must be with the present system of grading. There was no very remarkable variation from the general average of last year due to the fact that according to the present system most good students get the same marks. There was no one to hold aloft the torch thrown from the hands of Tommy Grafton who lead the Senior Class of last year but there are a multitude of lesser lights.

And alack a day! That we should have to weep the death of our beloved Gamma Sigma. The journalistic order, the fruit of the fertile brain of one who is no longer with us, has passed into that land of the forgotten from which very few ever emerge. And this before we were initiated. Alack!

SATIRE

JOKIES

MONKEY: "SWEETHEART, DID I HURT YOU?"

Simile: As cov as a Presidential Candidate.

* * * * *

Rector: Is that your cigarette stub?

Surry: Boy, go ahead father, you saw it first.

* * * * *

Prov: I was sorry to see you come out of that saloon yesterday.

Surry: Couldn't help it, sir, I had a class.

* * * * *

Horsy: I understand the faculty decided to stop drinking.

Torsy: Still right as long as they don't try to stop the students.

* * * * *

For the information and convenience of the new students we herein endeavor to give in brief the characteristics and origins of our honorary fraternities. But as jokes we fear they are a bit too practical.

First and foremost comes the illustrious order of the Sigma Kappa Alpha. They are a cozy lot as our great student cynic states: "The only reason they are all scholastic is because they are too ugly to do anything else." We have long considered this as one of the rules for membership in the lodge, but since every rule must have an exception, we were in doubt. But now we cease to worry, for our exception is found in the person of our editor.

Some time ago a group of our dumbest boys got in an argument. Some affirmed that Mussolini was a great magician and that Houdini caused the French revolution. The other insisted that Houdini was the premier of Italy and Mussolini was heavy weight champion of the world. They carried their differences to Prod. Brown for settlement. That noble one grew d-shattered and in behalf of such Bozos, established the E. R. C. for the purpose of instructing them. The organization still exists so we see there are still many dumb personages among us.

The Lambda Phi Gamma was founded in 1843 the year of the greatest and most antagonistic pledge rush in our history. Some reward was needed to induce unsuspecting frosh to join—and the idea of an honorary musical frat served the bill. The organization was limited for but one reason: Hippocket wished to show Haynie and Strih how a mocking bird's legs may be developed through exercising the vocal cords. Other instructors and pupils have joined.

IN MEMORIAM

This space is most respectfully dedicated to the death of the late order of Gamma Sigma. As we often find written in cash restaurants, "Slow payments killed him."

And we fear that much revered and very exclusive Sigma Upsilon literary society will soon follow suit—if some members don't cease reading essays concerning the morals of coeds at the meetings. Not to mention Balzac's Droll Stories.

Some persons must have an audience. There are at least ten to every student body. These most gripping individuals, having bored the entire campus to death by their bull, were persuaded to the extent that none would breathe their hot air. A great conspiracy was formed. They now dignified by the name of Pi Kappa Delta, conspired to go to other institutions where no one knew them and get the required audiences. The trips are arranged with similar societies of other colleges, who in turn are allowed to come here.

By their fruits you shall know them. Shunned by decent society, believing they descended from monkeys, and we are often disposed to agree with them, we find the Chi Beta Phi. They spend their time in dark laboratories poring up hydrogen sulfide or cutting on dead cats and earthworms. Take warning, dear frosh. They are of the breed that killed Byron.

Borrowed Gems

Our idea of an absent-minded prod is one who walked into the room, put his cane in a chair and stood up in a corner, tied his spaghetti and ate his shoestrings, washed his hands, threw water in the bed and jumped out of the window.
